A familiar sight to both school bus riders and sports followers is the rear entrance. Here buses load and unload daily, and spectators enter the building through the fieldhouse lobby.

Seasonal beauty enhances modern design.

Gracefully curving sidewalks bend toward the main entrance.

Several years ago our Board of Education saw the growing need for a new school building and in March, 1957, passed a resolution to build a new high school. In September of the following year, formal ground-breaking ceremonies were held, and construction was started on the three and one-half million dollar school. Year-round crews worked to complete the building in time for its September, 1960 opening. The school's modern facilities include an auditorium with 1500 seats, three gymnasiums, a student activities room, a 7588 volume library, and a cafeteria which seats 600. This year our building houses over 1600 students.

SEATED: Mrs. Janet Hopkins, Henry Metzger, Emery Meyers — President. STANDING: Homer S. Nightingale — Superintendent, Edward C. Kutz, Clyde Elder — Vice President, Orra K. Benton — Clerk-Treasurer.

Homer S. Nightingale — Superintendent, Washington Local Schools

Handwritten note:
 Mr. Nightingale is the Superintendent of the Washington
 Local Schools

The Board of Education members, who are elected for four-year terms, employ Mr. Homer Nightingale to administer their plans for our school system. The board must consider the needs of one senior high school, two junior high schools, and eleven elementary schools. By looking ahead, it was able to plan for two elementary schools which will be opened in the next two years to meet the growing enrollment. To keep the high educational standards which it sets, the board employs nearly 350 teachers for the 9133 students currently enrolled in our schools. In addition to the regular public school program, summer school and adult night school sessions are held. The post of assistant superintendent for instruction, held by Mr. Jack Meade, was created to help with the administration of the Washington Local Schools.

To a wonderful sister. May all your dreams come true.
Love always

The mural which decorates the east wall of the field house was painted by Jim Nickloy, a local artist. It shows the evolution of athletic events and pictures all sports in which Whitmer participates. Even a stylized Panther has been incorporated into the design in the lower right.

Graduation has a different meaning to different seniors. To some it represents the end of their formal education and the beginning of their life's work. To others it is merely a stepping stone towards a higher education, either at a college or at a school of specialized training.

In the classroom students use a study period to learn the same French verbs, geometry theorems, and cell structures that other students before them have had to learn.

Students eagerly await the last period of the day on special Fridays when pep sessions are held. Here juniors meet their friends and enter the field house to cheer their team.

Students' spirits rise as high as the flames of the crackling bonfire. Here our fighting Panther teams are introduced to their cheering classmates at the beginning of the football season.

Whitmer, with its own customs, traditions, and personality, welcomes incoming students into its friendly atmosphere, and helps them to adapt to it. The high academic standards, keen athletic competition, and generally stimulating atmosphere which are provided by the school allow the student to grow and develop his potential. An alumnus of this distinctive educational system leaves Whitmer at graduation as a more complete personality. The graduate is not the only one who profits from his time spent at Whitmer. The school gains with each new student's arrival; it is enriched by his searching mind; it profits from his very presence. Although he may take standard courses and follow routine procedure, each student is an individual and contributes to his school as such.

Traditions renew their fire and vitality with each new wave of enthusiastic students who participate in them. Each new group is an identity in itself; every group helps to build the over-all character of the school. Every group, every student, is different; but when they are combined, they are the school. They form a new, a different, and a growing school each year. Although the classes, clubs, and co-curricular activities are much the same from year to year, the distinguishing element, that makes this school year different from the score of others that have preceded it and the scores of others to follow, is the students. These individual members of the school set apart each year, each activity, each day, from all others and impress upon them a distinctive mark and stamp of personality.

Inter-Club Council meets after school in the student activities room. It is composed of representatives from all school organizations and advised by Mr. Schaller. The council co-ordinates club activities and gives approval for all their money-raising projects.

Language courses capture the beauty,

In the spirit and costume of the times, Marsha Parks explains that at this place on the map Caesar was assassinated in 44 B.C.

All four years of Spanish put special emphasis on conversation. Grammar and vocabulary lessons are taught in the class room and put into practice in our language laboratory, where students also listen to recordings of natives from other countries. The advanced classes read the Spanish novels Marta y Maria and José. Fridays are spent giving speeches and writing themes. Participants in the student exchange program this year were Kathy Drake and Sandy Kruse, who spent two months in Mexico last summer, and Madeleine Jacques, from Mexico City, who returned the visit.

Whitmer's Latin program begins with second year study. The first part of the year is spent on basic grammar and vocabulary. When the students have a working knowledge of the language, they begin translating Caesar's Gallie Wars. While these students follow Caesar through his many adventures and campaigns, the third year students learn about Roman history by translating the works of Cicero. His orations provide insight into an age of political upheaval. Although no modern nation has Latin as its national tongue, students do use the language laboratory to help them with pronunciation and phrasing.

During the entire four year French course, pamphlets, newspapers, posters, and menus in French familiarize the students with the French and French-Canadian language and culture in a way that no textbook can. Required reading includes French editions of the familiar books 20,000 Lieues Sous les Mers, Le Comte de Monte Cristo, Le Petit Prince, and Don Quixote. For those who are interested in a more complete knowledge of modern France, the popular magazines House and Garden and Reader's Digest are provided.

Zina Albert — English, Ambition — to sip tea with the Queen of England, Appreciates — languages, since they reveal character, Peeve — people who are bored.

Mrs. Margaret Koon — English, Bible Club, Ambition — to be a social worker, Appreciates — music, Peeve — tardy students.

Composition reveals hidden talents.

The semester composition course is concerned mainly with the mechanics of the art of good writing. Special emphasis is placed on the composition needs of college-bound students. Varied assignments are made so that students may be familiar with the most common types of college assignments. A second semester of creative writing is offered. Students are introduced to different composition styles in both prose and poetry, and they are encouraged to develop styles of their own.

Composition students learned to develop an idea quickly and write it down clearly and concisely by writing impromptu themes. An idea "stimulus" was furnished by the students or teacher each day. After the themes were written they were exchanged with other classmates and the teacher for criticism. On this day the class assembled a life preserver, a copy of 1984, and an arrow to form a group "stimulus."

Mrs. Judith Dearbaugh — English, Pep Club, Ambition — to teach, Appreciates — Broadway albums and musicals, Peeve — irresponsible students.

Darlene DeNune seems to deny Melville's picture of a powerful white whale, as she calmly picks one up to show the class.

Fears diminish as speech develops poise.

One of the two journalism classes prints the school newspaper, Panther's Pause, and the other edits the yearbook, the Oracle.

The English program includes not only courses designed to teach students how to communicate effectively by writing, but also how to express clearly their ideas by speaking. Besides the correct mechanical pronunciations and phrasings, students also learn proper outline and notetaking procedures.

Mrs. Elaine Shaw — English, Ambition — to teach music, physical education, Appreciates — classical music, Peeve — questionnaires.

Jalan Aufderheide — English, Thespians, Ambition — to write, Appreciates — "My own poetry," Peeve — carelessness.

Mrs. Mary Ann Stutz — English, F.T.A., Ambition — to be an English teacher, Appreciates — modern art, any type theater, Peeve — generalizing.

Mrs. Helen Dennis — English, Oracle, Ambition — to be a nurse or librarian, Appreciates — students who follow instructions, Peeve — pessimists.

Anne Kingsley — English, Quill and Scroll, newspaper, Ambition — to be a foreign news correspondent, Appreciates — sports, reading, Peeve — inconsiderate people.

Mrs. Connie Bueter — English, Ambition — to be a teacher, Appreciates — drama, musical comedy, modern jazz, Peeve — "a cluttered desk."

Literature opens doors to the world.

Sophomore English stresses the principles of English and provides students with a broad background in literature. Several weeks of the year are spent on grammar, and classes also use a grammar workbook. Background material includes the study of knowledge of ancient Greek and Roman characters is useful when references to them are found in books and poems. The sophomore program requires the reading of Silas Marner, A Tale of Two Cities, and Julius Caesar. Students also make poetry anthologies each year. Early in the year, the classes are taken to the library and are taught how to use it correctly. This knowledge is useful, especially during the junior year when more research work is assigned. Although only Moby Dick is required reading, less class time is spent on grammar. Greater emphasis is placed on selections from the American literature book. Many essay contests are open to juniors. These prepare them for the increased amount of original composition done in senior English. More library and research work prepare students for college assignments. The whole year's study of British literature is mainly the study of poetry, and students themselves try their hand at writing in the styles of poets whom they study. All classes read Hamlet, MacBeth, and David Copperfield, which are required, and an assorted selection of works which varies from class to class.

To help them decide on a topic for their own poetry anthologies, Chryss Mavrides and Diana Reimschuessel examine some that have been done by students in the past.

Lawrence Rochelle — English, Jr. FTA, Bowling, Ambition — to own a fireman's Dalmation, Appreciates — a long Russian novel, Peeve — "TV's intellectual pop."

Nick Neuhausel, Cheryl Crocket, Dick Hansen, and Pat Kaiser run the potato race, one of five tests in our physical fitness program. The set of tests also includes the 50-yard dash, the rope climb, chin-ups, and push-ups. All students are graded at different times throughout the year and their improvement is recorded.

High standards demand stamina, skill.

In the fall when school started, students welcomed the opportunity to spend an hour class period outside on the playing field. Boys' physical education classes played pass-and-tap, soccer, and speedball. The five-day girls' classes played kickball, soccer, speedball, speedaway, and field hockey. Girls' two-day classes followed much the same schedule. Because of the lack of room in the gyms, basketball skills were practiced, but no games were played. With the first of December came the beginning of the four month-long tumbling program for the five-day and boys' classes. This year some girls' classes were able to choose a program of basketball, fencing, dancing, and badminton instead of tumbling during the winter months. The gymnastic program was climaxed by the 29th annual circus in which students performed the skills that they had learned and practiced in class. Volleyball was next on the agenda, and was followed by blooper ball which ended the year's program. Equipment was purchased this year from a health studio. These new pieces of equipment were designed to exercise any parts of a person's body which might need strengthening. It was bought primarily for those students who are unable to participate in the normal physical education program.

activities in the world around them.

The study of geography literally encompasses the surface of the earth. After the basic knowledge of oceans, continents, prominent mountain ranges, bays, and landmarks has been mastered, individual countries are studied. The effect of land on the people, economy, and customs is analyzed.

Whitmer's sociology program stresses the individual and his purpose in society. Problems are defined, analyzed, and interpreted by each student, as they affect him in his daily life. Issues of the day, as well as age-old topics, are used as the subjects of class discussion and debate.

The study of American history teaches students to appreciate our country today, by showing them how it was founded and evolved. The causes and effects of civic, social, economic, and moral changes in the nation's development are studied in as many aspects as possible. A rudimentary knowledge of the Constitution prepares the student for another mandatory course, civics. Civics emphasizes the necessity for a working knowledge of governmental machinery so that citizens may vote intelligently.

By studying human culture from the earliest times, students of world history learn to understand the true origin and development of much of what has been inherited from past ages. The contributions of great people, states, and institutions to modern times are analyzed thoroughly. Contemporary history requires students to read the newspapers daily so that they learn of world occurrences when these things are "news," and not when they are "history."

Dennis Karsh combines proper military dress with a pure civilian smile to help recruit volunteers.

Shorthand supplies symbols for sentences.

In our world of growing technology, greater emphasis is placed upon clear and efficient communication than ever before. Typing helps solve this need because typing can be read easily, even though it is put on paper much faster than a person can write. Any student, no matter what his plans for the future, can benefit from a typing course.

A requirement that is often expected of secretarial applicants is skill in shorthand. By simply using symbols to represent sounds and words, the secretary can write as many as 120 words a minute. After one year of shorthand, students are expected to be able to write 60-80 words a minute; after two years 90-120 words per minute are required.

Many toilsome office chores are being done by machines today, but often the machines are so complicated that a mere novice couldn't just "push a button" and make them work. The business machines classes learn not only how to operate these time-savers, but also how to take them apart to clean or adjust them.

Bookkeeping proves to be a useful course, no matter what a student plans to do when he is finished with high school. People are confronted with standard records and tax forms everyday. This course teaches the fundamentals of the system and provides a solid background for those who wish to study bookkeeping at a higher level.

Carol McHaffie checks her figures as she operates a bookkeeping machine.

EDWIN KNEPPER — Business, Ambition — to direct a band, Appreciates — musicals, Peeve — not enough time to do everything I'd like to do.

More than one pair of hands is required to complete this experiment quickly so Dick Knauer, Karen Carrick, and Dave George each perform a different phase of the distillation test.

Courses probe into the chemistry of life

Chemistry, the study of elements and the changes which they undergo, is a typical science course. It is growing and expanding so fast that textbook material is often outdated and must be supplemented by outside texts and articles. The language of this science course is mathematics. The processes learned in math classes help to solve real problems that facts and laws, new to the students, have presented. Periods in the laboratory are spent learning how elements and compounds react with other substances. When a sufficiently strong background in lab work has been established, students are given unknown substances on which they run series of tests to determine what the element or compound is.

Van Harp and Gary Wymer "bone up" for a practical on the skeletal system.

Because the subject of physics deals with energy and matter, more time is spent by students in working problems than performing experiments. A sound mathematics background is necessary because all arithmetic skills learned since the fourth grade are used by these students. In physics, however, these numbers and processes take on new meaning; they are not just calculations to be worked, but problems to be solved. Unlike chemistry, problems deal with physical, not chemical, changes in matter. The broadness of this subject has lead to the division into branches of study: mechanics, heat, sound, light, electricity, and atomic. Our physics classes spend some time covering the basic principles of each branch, but because of the subject's complexity our one year program merely scratches the surface.

The study of systems and their functions is taken up in the physiology classes. A great deal of memorization is required so that students will know what to look for when they dissect their cat cadavers. Charts and a human skeleton help classes to learn the locations of muscles and bones. But students must also be able to identify muscles on a living human body. When time comes for this practical, a student comes in and the class identifies the muscles that the teacher points out.

Labs explore phenomena.

Two biology courses are offered at Whitmer. Practical biology is suited for the student who wishes to go no further in science. It presents a general picture of the subject applicable in everyday life. College prep biology is patterned after college classes. It familiarizes students with the classroom and laboratory techniques used in colleges. The plant kingdom is studied during the first semester. At this time students learn the proper procedure for the microscope and the equipment used with it. Photographs taken by the teacher under the microscope are marked and identified so that students can see what they are supposed to study under their own microscopes. Second semester features dissection and laboratory work until classes begin to study the larger forms of higher life. Lecture then replaces lab work to finish the year's program.

The organisms seen in a drop of stagnant pond water would probably include this common microscopic plant life. Greatly magnified, the spirogyra in the foreground is seen in a stage of reproduction. A filament of the algae floats to the right with green bands of spiralling chlorophyll twisting through it.

Math stimulates thinking.

Plane geometry, the study of figures drawn in a single plane, trains students in correct methods of thinking. The facts learned in geometry are useful for artists, designers, machinists, and carpenters, but the habits of thought learned are helpful for everyone. The theorems and postulates that today's students use are the same ones that men first proved centuries ago. But today's students put these ancient mathematical truths to modern, practical uses in the study of aeronautics, trajectory, and map reading.

Algebra provides a tool for the quick and easy solution of varied and everyday problems. Standard formulas and normal logic show students progressively easier ways to solve problems, until they are ready for the advanced algebra program. Advanced algebra introduces students to higher equations, logarithms, graphs, and plotting. Accuracy of calculation is stressed so that these higher mathematical procedures are not rendered useless.

The basis of senior mathematics is trigonometry, the study of triangles. By the use of formulas, trigonometry students learn how to measure distances indirectly. Surveying, engineering, physics, astronomy, and navigation all use trigonometry and its principles.

Musicians combine rhythm with harmony.

Listed high in cultural achievement is appreciation of music. The best way to learn to appreciate music is to listen carefully before performing it. With the guidance of experienced teachers, students learn to listen to an entire musical score and not just the dominant melody. The band meets as a class five days a week during the school year. Members even spend one whole week at band camp before school begins to practice their playing and marching. The marching band entertains during halftime at home football games, and a small pep band plays at pep sessions. The concert band performs at school assemblies and public programs during the year. Our vocal program includes the sophomore girls' glee club, which meets two days a week for practice, and the choir. The choir is made up of boys from all classes and junior and senior girls. They practice five days a week and sing at special assemblies and a Christmas concert which is open to the public.

Music students must practice to give a polished performance. Besides group rehearsals in the main band room, private practice rooms are provided in which students may practice without disturbing any one else. Dick King and Dave Work often make use of these rooms. In addition to rehearsing the music, band members must also learn the marching and close-order drill routines that are used in football halftime programs.

Paul Slovak — Fine Arts, Ambition — to act, Appreciates — art, musical shows, records, Peeve — students who do not support school events.

Canvases come alive with color as art students contrast and blend their own shades and hues.

Art and Home Ec. utilize creativeness.

The fine arts are explored in Whitmer's art program. By studying ancient masters and their styles, each student develops his own distinctive style in all mediums in which the students work. They experiment with paints, paper, glue, and metal to find in which area of art their talent lies. Even if students find that they possess no one great ability in any single field, after taking one or more art courses they develop an appreciation for fine art in its varied forms.

The art of food preparation is taught at Whitmer in our well equipped kitchen. The girls practice arranging a menu so that sweet and sour foods are properly balanced with the correct assortment of vitamins, etc. Another skill they develop is sewing. Although ready-made garments have replaced home-made clothes in most cases, basic sewing techniques are valuable to every modern housewife. Our program offers an opportunity for future homemakers to practice the household tasks that will be theirs in later life.

Our modern home economics facilities include a home complete with kitchen, living, dining, and bedrooms. Here Roberta Shipman and Kathy Matz busy themselves much as they would in their own bedrooms.

Frances Kern — Home Economics, F.H.A., Ambition — to be an orchestra leader, Appreciates — early American antiques, Peeve — short skirts.

Using a lathe in the machine shop, Bill Jones makes a screw for a vice.

The trade and industrial machine shop course prepares students for a place in industry. Its program familiarizes the students with machines common to tool and die makers, machinists, and machine repairmen. The actual use of these tools and machines in class is balanced by a course in related science and trade theory. In these classes, the students learn the blueprint reading, mathematics, and technology that is necessary for them to do their jobs correctly.

In auto-mechanics, the boys are able to learn and practice their lessons on cars that have been brought in for service or on their own cars. They are free to make necessary, supervised repairs in class. A required part of this course is the related science class which gives the boys the technical knowledge needed to make a mechanical repair.

Don Lybarger, Bill Wallington, Bill Curtis, and Tom Mizelle analyze a motor to determine its malfunction with the standard Sun tester.

Thad Speier — Trades and Industries, VIC, Ambition — to teach, Appreciates — modern art, Peeve — parents who leave discipline to the school.

Harry Graves — Trades and Industries, Senior Class, Ambition — "to be a good American citizen," Appreciates — traveling, Peeve — people who procrastinate.

Students in the art metals class practice gas welding in the shop welding booths.

Roger Weber — Art Metals, Shop Math, Golf, Ambition — to be an architect, Appreciates — his family and current events, Peeve — "tired feet."

A creative industrial arts course taught at Whitmer is the art metals course. Here students learn the characteristics of different metals and the problems involved in working with them. Students learn the correct and most effective use of hand tools and also the proper procedures used in working metals on machines. Both electric and gas welding are included in this program.

Our woodworking course is useful not only for those students who want to earn their living by working with wood, but also for those students who realize the convenience of knowing how to make simple household repairs. Students are introduced to the principles of good craftsmanship and design, and are better able to choose and execute a project for class.

Del Johnson — Woodworking, Ambition — "to grow up," Appreciates — good health, Peeve — lazy people.

Boys learn skills used at work, home.

Several sophomore woodshop students learn the fundamentals of spindle turning on the wood lathes in the shop.

Kenny Horn sands a project that he has made in class, a gun rack.

Jerry Nemire carefully shades his drawing of a model home.

RALPH PRITTS — Drawing, Ambition — to be a coach or a teacher, Appreciates — hunting and sports in general, Peeve — tardiness.

Specialized courses demand accuracy.

Prospective engineers, designers, architects, and draftsmen find mechanical drawing a necessary course. Each of these professions calls for the ability to visualize objects in three-dimension and to draw them accurately. These men must take material, stress, use, temperature, and tolerance into consideration when making the drawings from which blue-prints are made. The students in our program are taught the rudiments of drawing. They then utilize these principles when making their own drawings. Introductory assignments call for the exact reproduction of another draftsman's work. As students' techniques improve, however, more difficult and practical problems are presented to prepare them for situations that they will meet on the job.

The mechanical skill of driving a car can be mastered in a relatively short time. Safe driving, however, requires both manual skill and special knowledge. Before a driver can sit behind the wheel of our training car, he must be familiar with Ohio's driving laws. The Ohio State Driver's Manual is used as a regular textbook. Students are trained to think ahead, and to anticipate situations in traffic. This attitude of "defensive" driving keeps them alert to any emergency that might occur. A trip to the Traffic Court and pictures of real accidents illustrate to the class what happens when traffic laws are broken or the defensive is let down.

Classmates watch as Mike McHaffie tests Gene Nadolny's reactions to prove that drivers can't "stop on a dime."

School crews give Whitmer its sparkle.

Every school, no matter what its size, needs a special staff to keep the school running smoothly. Although Whitmer's staff of 26 is large, it works together efficiently and well. The little tasks that most students take for granted are performed by this corps of school personnel. The first students to arrive at school are likely to meet members of the kitchen staff. These women report for work at an early hour to prepare lunch for hundreds of Whitmer students every day. Long after most students have gone home, custodians walk from room to room, cleaning the classrooms. They provide us with a neat and orderly atmosphere in which we can do our best work.

The school library is located on the second floor above the main lobby and administrative offices. One glass wall and fluorescent lights keep the room bright on the dreariest day. Newspaper and magazine racks keep library material up-to-date.

Knowledge and experience awaken new

Surrounded by the material with which they work each day, Mrs. Lemerand and Mrs. Coney catalogue new books in the library.

As Whitmer continues to grow in size, the library increases in importance. Whitmer is fortunate to have the modern Earl B. Driver library in the school building. Its material is especially geared to the needs of high school students.

The high windows, which cover one wall of the room, and comfortable tables and chairs contribute to an atmosphere that makes studying easier. Besides the rows of shelves of multicolored books, eye-catching and interesting displays are found here. Work rooms border the main room on two sides and students who work in the library repair books in these rooms. If more information is needed by a student than our library can supply, a branch of the Lucas County Library, located on our campus, can supply the required material.

Mrs. Coney has been the librarian at Whitmer for three years. Her one-time ambition to be a teacher and her interest in reading are reflected in her choice of careers.

Although Mrs. Alice Lemerand has been a library assistant since the new building was opened, she first aspired to be a nurse. Reading, swimming, and bowling are her hobbies, and she dislikes anything that is unorganized.

Their positions as Boys' and Girls' Deans often call for Mr. Smith and Mrs. Schlegel to confer about matters of school policy.

interests and challenge searching minds.

The school's counselors perform duties concerning all students at Whitmer. The girls' and boys' counselors keep attendance records, supervise the health rooms, and help students with personal problems. The guidance counselor administers psychological, aptitude, and intelligence tests. He makes available applications for and results of state and national college entrance exams. He helps students plan their schedules at Whitmer and their careers at college.

Mrs. Irma Schlegel chose a teaching over a law career and began teaching at Whitmer thirty-four years ago. She enjoys traveling and watching ball games. She most admires in people the ability to "get along well with other people."

Mr. Vern Smith entered the teaching profession rather than the ministry twelve years ago. His duties as dean and as head football coach enable him to do the work with boys that he so enjoys. He tries to develop the traits which he admires: strength, character, courage, and truthfulness in the boys with whom he works.

Mr. Paul Driscoll has just completed his first year at Whitmer after spending several years in California as a guidance counselor. He originally planned to be a resort hotel manager, and these plans are reflected in his hobbies of skiing and swimming.

Mr. Driscoll keeps many reference books and brochures in his office to help students choose and prepare for a life's occupation.

Mrs. Margaret Scofield — Secretary to Mr. Schaller

Mr. Schaller, new assistant, is no newcomer to field.

The entire student program is run through the office of the assistant principal. He supervises the body of representatives from each school club, known as Inter-Club Council. The council organizes and controls the co-curricular activities for which Mr. Schaller is responsible. Class scheduling is handled and records of students' classes and grades are kept in his office.

Mr. Glenn Schaller has completed his first year as assistant principal at Whitmer. After attending Bowling Green State University and the University of Michigan he entered the field of education because of his admiration for youth and learning. He has had experience in elementary and in junior and senior high schools. His former ambition to be an athlete was partially realized when he became a coach at Clay High School.

Before accepting his appointment in the Washington Local Schools, Mr. Schaller served for two years as the principal of Fassett Junior High School in Oregon. He enjoys seeing students achieve something that they thought impossible and is irritated by students who drop courses.

Mrs. Margaret Scofield is responsible for the announcements and the public address system. She also types the absentee list every day and records grades at the end of each grading period. Eligibility lists are turned into her office and she sends students' transcripts to the colleges to which they apply. In her spare time Mrs. Scofield enjoys camping, yard work, and reading.

Mr. Davis ends ninth successful year as principal.

Mr. Harvey Davis, as principal of Whitmer, is head of the faculty and administration. He presides over faculty meetings and conducts all matters with the Board of Education and the Superintendent of Schools. School policy decisions are issued from his office, and school funds and records are kept in a vault near his outer office.

For the past nine years, Mr. Davis has served in the administrative post of principal although he has been a member of the faculty here since 1947. Two days before entering college, he impulsively decided to study education rather than medicine. After graduating from Northwest Missouri State Teachers College and serving in the army, he began teaching industrial arts at Whitmer. His ability and genuine interest in students served him well during his years of teaching and serving as boys' dean and principal. He enjoys listening to good music, and lists his peeve as people who don't follow directions.

Mrs. Elsie Miller runs the duplicating machines at Whitmer. She has trained students to work in her office to help run off newsletters, notices, tests, and worksheets. She keeps all the financial records for the school and its many organizations. She supplies check vouchers, checks, and current balances for the club treasurers. Mrs. Miller enjoys playing the organ and reading for relaxation.

At Whitmer much of the emphasis placed on school spirit and the encouragement of good sportsmanship is due to the spirited attitude of our cheerleaders. Both varsity and reserve squads, with their adviser Mrs. Karazim, try to keep team support and sports promotion at their highest peak. One of the most popular ways in which the students can show the team that they're behind them is through pep sessions. These assemblies are planned by the cheerleaders and the cheering mascot, Connie Laney.

The try-outs take place for two weeks in the spring. The final selection is made by a panel of judges which includes faculty members and senior cheerleaders.

Midway in the basketball season, reserve cheerleader Jan Kaufman moved to California and was replaced by Karen Frankel.

Like athletes, these girls start practicing long before the season begins. Early in the summer, weekly practices are held at the homes of different girls. They also attend clinics at which they learn new cheers and listen to new cheerleading ideas.

Tri-captains and coaches unite to

The 1962 Panther grid team finished its season this year with an even record of five wins and five losses. A more promising season is hoped for next year when the 1962 reserve champions become eligible for varsity competition.

Our first league encounter was with the Clay Eagles. Despite the rain, hundreds of Whitmer supporters turned out to watch the Panthers win the game and also to win back the prized jug.

The next two league games were lost, but our conquest of Sylvania pulled us back into the winning ranks. The team finished the season on a winning note with a decisive victory over the Bedford Mules.

Post season honors came to four varsity teammates, Gene Kawczynski, Andy Pease, Jerry Wauford, and Gary Wymer when they were placed on the all G.L.L. offensive and defensive teams.

Faces of alarmed players reflect the dismay of their teammates as the opponents recover a fumble.

The backdrop for the football banquet, drawn by Mr. Wymer, displays the faces of the coaches and graduating seniors.

young basketball team perks up as season

Fine team effort and spirit was shown by this year's Panther basketball squad. Although it was a relatively new team, with no starters back from last year, the boys played well together and ended the season with a 7-11 over all record and a 4-6 record in league play.

The season got off to a poor start as the first three games were lost to tough opponents, but the Panthers bounced into the winning column in the fourth game by defeating the Waite Indians.

The first round of league action began with a loss to the G.L.L. champs, Rogers. As the season progressed, however, a definite improvement could be seen in the team from week to week. Sylvania's close, one-point victory on their home court was one of the most thrilling games of the season. The Panther squad battled down to the wire and only lost the game in the final seconds of play. The half-way point of the season was marked by a resounding victory over Bedford. The team completely over-powered the Mules on their own court as we coasted to a comfortable twenty point victory.

The end of the season showed a remarkable spurt in the team's play. We avenged our losses to Clay and Sylvania, by winning by generous margins. Both school and team spirit rose higher with each win. In the final game of the season, against Bedford, the Panthers racked up 78 points for their highest score of the year.

Wrestling is a comparatively new sport at Whitmer. The first team was organized in 1952 and was coached by Mr. Vern Smith. Since 1959, the team has been coached by Mr. Steve Kerlin. Unlike many other sports, wrestling is an individual effort rather than teamwork. Eleven matches are wrestled in separate weight divisions, and each match score contributes to the team score.

A good season was enjoyed this year by the Panther wrestling squad. Completing the season with a 7-6 record in dual meets, the matmen placed second in a quadrangular meet held in Lakewood, Ohio, and third in the G.L.L. Tournament hosted by Whitmer. With only one letterman returning from the 1961-1962 season, the young team made a very favorable showing, and promise is seen for an even better season next year when fourteen lettermen will be back on the squad.

The team featured outstanding wrestlers in 103 lb. Tom Kwiatkowski and 175 lb. Dale Harcourt. Tom and Dale, both juniors, won G.L.L. championships in their respective weight divisions, and Tom went on to place second in the district meet. Team Captain Greg Haase was our other G.L.L. champion, winning in the 165 lb. weight class. Greg also captured first place in the district meet, enabling him to compete in the state tournament in Columbus, where he placed fourth in the state.

Whitmer's bowlers are grouped into two teams. Members are selected for the first team on the basis of their individual averages. Before each match the member of the second team with the highest average, challenges the member of the first team who carries the lowest average to a match. If the challenger wins, he becomes a member of the first team. The teams, coached by Mr. Rochelle, practiced on Wednesdays after school at either Jug's Bowling Center or Douglas Miracle Lanes. On Saturdays the teams met at Great Eastern Lanes in Oregon for their scheduled matches. Our squads met the Bedford, Clay, and Port Clinton teams three times each during the October to March season. Perry Doerman, who was captain of the first team, carried the high average of 164. The second team of keglers was captained by John Bretzloff. Team number one placed second in the league.

Baseball team puts up a good fight on

The 1962 Varsity Baseball team, with five returning lettermen had considerably less than a good season. Many of the games were close and were lost only in the closing inning of the game. The team started the season with three straight losses, but in their fourth game, against Clay, the fighting spirit and general excitement ran high. The Panthers were ahead 2-1 in the fifth inning. By the bottom of the seventh, the score was tied with bases loaded, and a run was driven in by Gary Wymer to win the game. After two more losses, the team defeated Bedford soundly, with a final score of 11-1. Three games later the Panthers evened the score with Rogers, who had beaten them earlier in the season, by defeating the Rams 3-2.

Coming in for a run, Rod Jenkins looks back to check the action at third base.

Heath Wingate proudly accepts the 1962 Dale Crow Award from Mr. Davis.

Dale Crow

Heath Wingate was awarded the Dale Crow Memorial Trophy at the 1962 Honors Assembly. He received this recognition because of his exceptional scholastic and athletic standing.

Heath played both reserve and varsity football, basketball, and baseball. He was an all GLL member of the Blade-Times football team. Besides his sports activities, Heath was a member of the Hi-Y, Varsity W, and was elected to Honor Society in his junior year. He is now attending Bowling Green State University.

Dale Crow, himself an outstanding scholar and athlete, attended Whitmer. After graduation from the University of Toledo, he returned to Whitmer as a teacher. When World War II broke out, he felt called to serve his country, and joined the Navy. He was killed while flying a mission over Wake Island.

The golf team compiled an impressive string of five wins during the eight-meet season in 1962. Among the honors which the team received were third place in the Bowling Green tournament, second place in the Great Lakes League, and first place in the Toledo District Golf Meet. Ours was the first of two teams in the Northwest district that went to Columbus for the State Meet. Ted Rennels, an individual medalist, Marvin Alexander, John Fisher, and Paul LaCourse competed in the tournament.

Most of the season's regular matches were played at Sunningdale Golf Course, where Ted Rennels and John Fisher proved to be consistently long off the tee. The greens were not neglected either, and as a result, our slamming, chipping, and putting Panthers parred and birdied their way to the State Meet. The three returning lettermen, Marvin Alexander, John Fisher, and Paul LaCourse will have had one year's experience on the Columbus links.

The 1962 Panther Cindermen ended the season with an impressive 7-1 record. Leading the team throughout the season were double and triple winners Ed Foley and Dave Carver. At the first meet we set the pace for the entire season by winning nine of the fourteen events, with four second places. Our third opponent, Libbey, sent a team composed of sophomores and juniors to the Whitmer oval to be soundly defeated by our trackmen. We split events with Bedford, but our overbalance won the meet. This winning streak was stymied by Clay, but we bounced back to win a tri-meet with Maumee and Bedford, and swept on to win the rest of the season's meets. One of our cindermen, Bill Myers, went on to the State meet in Columbus.

into enjoyable and entertaining music.

Whitmer's instrumental music program is open to any student who can play a musical instrument. Members of the marching band began the year's musical program two weeks before school started when members met to practice the musical numbers and marching drills that were needed for the football halftime entertainment. The last week of this training was spent at Camp Palmer near Fayette, where the junior high school bands joined them. Special routines were worked out for Band Night, which is traditionally held on the night of the first home football game. One program theme this year was Meredith Wilson's "The Music Man." The band played songs from and spelled out the title of "The Music Man" at one show. It also formed a barber chair, a horse and wagon, a trombone, and a cornet. In another show a Las Vegas horseshoe, the trademark of the Diamond Horseshoe Nite Club, a lucky four-leaf clover, and a pair of dice were formed.

When football season ended the marching band became a concert band. It turned from marches to popular tunes, show tunes, and classical music and during the year presented a public concert, which was also given for the student body. In the state band, which also played at this time of the year, the emphasis was upon dance music, jazz, blues, dixieland, and swing. Just as much importance was placed upon studying the various styles of popular music as on playing them.

WHITMER'S ALMA MATER

Looking through the years gone by,
We see old Whitmer's banners fly,
Loyal to the maize and blue
Ever are her students true.
We shall love and ever praise
Whitmer till our dying days.
Looking through the years gone by,
We see old Whitmer's banners fly.

Our school is loved by old and young,
For her valiancy unsung,
Superior in both sports and deeds,
In most every art she leads.
We shall ever live and fight
For the love of Whitmer's right.
Honor to our school we bring
For her valiancy we sing.

Colorful choir robes add sparkle to

One of the two vocal groups at Whitmer is the sophomore girls' glee club. The girls sang at the sophomore Christmas assembly held in the auditorium the day before the Christmas recess. Members of this group can join the choir in their junior or senior year, although boys may join the choir in their sophomore year. The choir presented musical programs at the school's religious assemblies and at a public concert held in our auditorium at Christmas time. Another concert was held in May with the choirs from our two junior high schools. Other special spring programs for which the choir practiced were the annual senior day assembly, the Baccalaureate service, and Commencement exercises. The peak of the choir's excitement came as the new choir robes arrived. The royal blue and white robes, decorated with an Old English style W, replaced the old dark blue and yellow ones in time for the Christmas programs which the choir presented.

Impromptu Christmas entertainment featured choir members singing in the halls and lobby to put their classmates in a holiday mood.

Panther's Pause

Whitmer has had a newspaper since 1929. At one time the newspaper staff also published the school yearbook. The mimeographed papers of the past prohibited the use of pictures, but with the use of the off-set printing process, photographs can now be reproduced clearly. This year's staff has added some new features, including the changing of the paper's name to Panther's Pause, a column reserved for the faculty each issue, and increased editorial comment. Students themselves are encouraged to write letters to the editor and express their views on school matters. In the spring, the staff attends an annual convention where judges rate northwestern Ohio high school newspapers. The qualifications for this newspaper staff are the same as those for the yearbook staff.

Oracle

The first Oracle staff was established in 1929. It published a yearbook only forty-three pages long, consisting of pictures of the faculty, members of all four classes, organizations, and sports. During the years of the depression, a paperback booklet with no pictures was published by the combined staffs of the Flying "W" and the Oracle. In later years the Oracle began to publish, and has continued to publish, an attractive hardback book featuring the school's many phases. Now, in order to be a member of the staff, a student must be a junior or a senior and be recommended by his English teacher. Besides the one class period a day that they spend working on the yearbook, the staff members also work throughout the summer and fall selling ads to local businesses to help meet the cost of printing the yearbook.

Anniversary conference convenes and Gudrun Zahn prepares to attend a tea with the student council president. The presidents of area councils and their candidates for queen of the Toledo Area Student Council dance attended the tea which was held a few days before the dance. Each girl was interviewed by a panel which judged her on her appearance, poise, and intellect.

Candidates for knight at the annual tournabout dance were Van Harp, Fritz Kalmbach, Andy Pease, Chuck Smith, and Gary Wymer. The Homecoming Queen, Lorna Farnol, dubbed Andy Pease knight and he reigned over the "Midwinter Knight's Dream" with his squires Rod Jenkins and Clair Wymer.

Student council is the body by which Whitmerites govern themselves. Through their elected representatives, students are able to express their views. Each class elected six representatives who formed the regular council. The commissioners and their assistants were chosen from this group. Home room representatives, who had the right to vote, formed the membership of these commissions.

Homecoming was the first big event of the year. Council supervised the queen's coronation and the Royalty Ball. Housing for the annual Whitmer Debate Tournament was next on the agenda. After exams, and just before Valentine's Day, the annual tournabout dance was held. This year, besides the traditional senior knight, a squire from each of the under-classes was also elected. On Student Government Day, council members assumed school administrative posts for a day. On the 25th, 26th, and 27th of April, the tenth annual conference of the Ohio Association of Student Councils was held at Whitmer. Delegates from all over the state, including many foreign exchange students, met to hear speakers and attend seminars on how to improve their own school councils.

She came to live with the Provenzanos at the beginning of the second semester after having lived in New York for six months. Caroline plans to go on to college in Toledo, and arrangements have been made for her to stay with her present foster family until her education is complete. A career as a teacher in a nursing school is Caroline's ambition.

Council Candids

Joe Kosuth paints a sign with the Toledo Area Student Council sportsmanship slogan on it. Hung below the mural on the east wall of the field house it read, "In victory or defeat, good sportsmanship is hard to beat." Each member of the Toledo Area Student Council submitted a slogan to the executive committee. After the selections were narrowed down, a final vote was taken at an area meeting. Both signs and car stickers were distributed at the beginning of the basketball season with this sportsmanship slogan on them.

Student Council's first money making project of the school year was the annual sweatshirt sale. Powder blue sweatshirts were ordered with an original school seal, designed by a student. Novelty shirts were also ordered featuring an animated Panther on a navy blue background. This new design proved very popular and was soon sold out. The supply of gold sweatshirts from last year was supplemented by this new supply. When they were delivered to one workroom, Carol Graham, who was chairman of the committee and Preston Ford, a committee member, sorted them for delivery.

Honorary inducts exceptional students.

Whitmer's chapter of the National Honor Society is composed of students selected for their outstanding achievement in scholarship, leadership, character, and service. Juniors must have an accumulative B average and seniors a C average to be eligible for membership. After induction in the spring, the new members attended a picnic with the graduating members. Before school was dismissed, a special meeting was held at which officers were elected. The summer months featured a party and scavenger hunt and a roast. Fall activities included a pajama party for the girls and the sponsorship of the last after-game dance of the football season, at which the doorprize was a team-auto-graphed football. Members held a progressive dinner at Christmas and another party before tapping ceremonies in March.

Honor Society members can and do furnish their own room at school. Sandy Sheppard, Bob Sharrock and Larry Strang rearrange some furniture while cleaning the room.

Members honored for specialized work.

Whitmer Thespians are members of an honorary dramatic society which promoted active interest in the dramatic arts. Members work not only before the footlights, but also backstage and during rehearsals. Interested students may become apprentice Thespians, and earn points for various theatrical activities. When they have earned ten points, they are eligible for election to the honorary. Besides the senior play, junior play and the school musical, members presented a one act play at the Miami Children's Home.

Quill and Scroll is an international honor society for students who are interested in and have done outstanding work in the field of journalism. The club sponsored an after game dance to raise money for its treasury. The annual induction was held for both juniors and seniors in March. The club bought the book American Journalism 1690-1960 to donate to the school library. Quill and Scroll also purchased name plates for the doors of the two journalism rooms.

Junior Classical league is open to any student who is taking or has taken one year of Latin. The club donated records to Toledo State Hospital and food, clothing, and toys to a needy family at Christmas time. Members attended the Roman banquet in January and a skating party in February. La Alianza is open to any student who is taking or has taken Spanish for one year. At the meetings club members heard speeches about Spanish-speaking countries and saw slides of these countries. A caroling party was held over the Christmas vacation to welcome the Mexican foreign exchange student, Madeleine Jacques. The height of the festivities was the singing of Las Posas, or Spanish Christmas carols, and the breaking of the pinata, a papier-mache head filled with candies and gifts. An induction dinner was held later in the year at which new members and officers were present. At this time, members received their new club pins. The club collected food and toys for two needy Mexican families at Christmas time.

Ancient traditions spark new enthusiasm.

Classical Honor Society is a national organization dedicated to promoting interest in the ancient Latin and Greek civilizations. Any student who has taken or is taking third year Latin is able to join. A hike and roast were held in the spring to welcome new members and elect officers. A summer splash party was held at Sunnyside Pool and another hike and roast at Oak Openings Park was held in the fall. Later in the year members gathered at a near by bowling alley to bowl before they adjourned to the president's house for a party. The third year Latin class compiled the student directories which included students' names and addresses. Members relived the days of ancient Rome at the banquet in January and attended the State Convention in Columbus in March.

Lana Reed sells student directories during a lunch hour. The directories contain an alphabetical list of the names, addresses, telephone numbers, classes, and home room of all students at Whitmer. The directories are compiled by the club members and are typed and mimeographed by the school business department. Classical Honor Society members then arrange and staple the booklets.

Debateurs combine hard work with expert

The first of the school's two speech clubs is the Forum, open to any Whitmer student interested in the promotion of interscholastic speech. Not only debaters, but also participants in individual speech events belong to the club. Members gave up free time after school and on Saturdays to practice for and take part in the regularly scheduled tournaments. They practiced and rehearsed right through the summer vacation. Whitmer's annual debate tournament was scheduled for December 7th and 8th, but because of a sudden snowstorm that closed Whitmer and the main highways, the tournament had to be postponed for a week. Aspiring teachers observe the varied

Both junior and senior Future Teachers of America Clubs familiarize members with opportunities in the field of education, some of the duties performed by teachers, and situations in school and community in which the clubs may be of service. F.T.A. members grade papers, wash blackboards, put up bulletin board displays, and take over their teachers' classes on student government day. One of their first activities in the year was the Open House at which members acted as guides. Later in the school year Senior F.T.A. held a fudge sale and in February it sponsored Teacher Week. During this week a different department was honored every day. Teachers in the honored departments received flowers and valentines on Valentines Day from their student teachers. The week ended with a tea for all the faculty and F.T.A. members. The junior F.T.A. prepared a food basket for a needy family, held an ice skating party, and planned an Easter party at an orphanage. At two club meetings, members heard speakers tell of the pros and cons of teaching in America and the similarities and differences between American and Mexican educational systems.

Research challenges inquisitive minds.

JETS, an abbreviation for Junior Engineering Technical Society, is an organization dedicated to promoting the physical sciences in the high school. JETS members built a work bench in the workroom next to the physics laboratory and installed a sprinkling system in the biology green house. The club also visited the Duraglass Center and the Libbey Glass plant, and built a ten-inch reflecting telescope.

Another science-minded organization at Whitmer is the Biology Club. The club promotes further familiarization with some problems studied in biology, especially the growing conservation problem. Club members planted tulip bulbs at the main entrance of the building and invited the Blade's nature editor to speak at an assembly program. The club also sponsored a field trip to Cranbrook Institute, Bloomfield Hills, Michigan.

Social events brighten club calendar.

The Vocational Industrial Club is composed of students enrolled in the trade and industrial classes. Its purpose is to promote interest and appreciation for the vocational industrial arts. The club, like the class program, is divided into two sections: auto-mechanics and machine shop. The auto-mechanic division purchased draperies for the related-science classroom and a first aid kit for the shop. Club members sold party nuts to raise money for their banquet. The machine division went to a VIC convention in the fall and prepared two Christmas baskets. They had an outdoor steak roast and another party during the holiday season.

Area participation aids in programming.

The Whitmer Youth for Christ Club is affiliated with a city-wide organization that encourages Christian fellowship in the school. The high moral standards which it tries to instill in its members gives them a standard by which to live and a means by which to fight juvenile delinquency. Rallies are held every other Saturday night which members of clubs from the whole city attend. A hayride in the fall started the school year's round of social activities. Two after-games parties were held by members of the club after the Rogers and the Sylvania basketball games. In the spring, our club joined other area clubs at a banquet honoring the graduating seniors.

Junior Council on World Affairs is a club open to any student at Whitmer who is interested in current events. The club fosters a greater understanding of world developments among its members through its activities. A team from Whitmer participated in "Quiz Bowl," a program similar to the television College Quiz Bowl, which was sponsored by the area JCWA. Tickets were sold by each member of the club and proceeds were used to support the area project, Project Hope, a medical ship which visits foreign countries. The area clubs' total donation this year was $1,200. On April 22 the Annual Spring Institute was held and members of all area clubs were invited to attend and join in the discussion of current events of 1963.

Books surround busy library assistants.

The main purpose of the Library Council is to assist the librarian in the routine library work. Members check books in and out at the desk, collect overdue fines, and shelve books. Besides these duties, council members makes the interesting displays for the library bulletin boards and the display case across from the library. To insure enough workers for the entire school day, council members have their regular periods scheduled for the library. The club sponsored the Christmas tea which was held in the library. The entire faculty, Board of Education, superintendent of schools, parents of library council members, and even former library council members were invited. Tea, coffee, punch, and homemade cookies and candy were served at this annual event which all guests have come to enjoy and look forward to. The club followed this successful achievement with another project dealing with food. It sponsored a fudge sale so that extra supplies could be purchased for the library.

Edward Knakiewicz offers his suggestion to Mike Kramer as Mike arranges a display in a case near the library. This particular display was designed to encourage reading about the days of the Old West.

Club experience aids in career choice.

Any girl who has taken or is taking at least one semester of home economics is eligible to join Future Homemakers of America. The club promotes an appreciation for the importance of homemaking and provides wholesome recreation for individuals and groups. Members learned about building homes by visiting a bank where the house was financed, an actual building site, and a furniture store. The girls donated a piece of furniture to the home economics department, went trick-or-treating for UNICEF on Halloween, and decorated the home economics showcase for Christmas.

Girl interested in nursing careers are welcome to join Future Nurses of America. The club fosters this interest in its members by introducing them to many aspects of the field. The club visits hospitals and private convalescent homes to see the surroundings and routines that are part of the everyday life of a working nurse. Members are encouraged to donate their free time to nursing activities and many girls volunteer for "candy-striper" work in hospitals during the summer.

Profession welcome future leaders.

Future Business Leaders of America is a club that is open to any student enrolled in at least one commercial course. The club prepares young people for positions of leadership and familiarizes them with the many opportunities for advancement that can be found in the business world. The club took advantage of the long cold spell last winter by having an ice-skating party and a sledding party. Members also contributed food to prepare Christmas baskets for needy families. The club toured International Business Machines to see the more complex machines that modern businesses use today. Members also participated in a convention at Bowling Green State University for business clubs. Speakers and exhibits were all part of the one-day program. At the end of the school year, the graduating senior members were honored at a club banquet.

Pep Club rallies enthusiasm and support

When an athlete has earned a varsity letter in football, basketball, wrestling, bowling, baseball, or track, he is eligible to become a member of the Varsity W. In the fall, members went on a hayride at Oak Openings Park. Afterward the couples went to Mr. Erme's house for refreshments and dancing. To make money, the boys sold peanuts at Whitmer's annual circus. Members bought Varsity W pins for themselves and held a banquet at a local restaurant in the spring.

Pep Club promotes spirit and good sportsmanship within the school. The many posters seen in the hall each week are made by the girls to help spur the boys on to victory. Tags are also made to be put on the team members' lockers. Last fall the girls entertained the students at a pep session by dressing up in football uniforms and putting on a comical skit.

Pep Club members make and attach tags to the lockers of boys participating in athletic events. Marcia Thyer, Kathy Whitesell, and Linda Adams take time to decorate a locker with a basketball tag.

G.A.A. members stress physical fitness.

The Girls' Athletic Association encourages girls' interest in all forms of physical activity. To remain active, members must participate in at least one of the sports offered each season, and three-fourths of the total number of games played. The games are played after school on prescribed days of the week. Bowling and field hockey started the program in the fall. One team attended a hockey play-day at Maumee High School as an interscholastic activity. G.A.A. intramural sports include basketball, table-tennis, shuffleboard, badminton, and volleyball. An extra volleyball game was played against Clay, after which the visiting team members were served cookies and milk.

One team takes advantage of a free hit and drives the ball towards the goal in a game of field hockey.

At this point in a volleyball game, no one is quite sure whether the ball will go over the net or not.

Sports minded girls exhibit enthusiasm.

Spring weather ushered in the softball, archery, and track seasons. The new adviser and physical education teacher, Miss Matheney, joined the girls in their games and activities. A fudge sale served as one of the club's money-making projects. Members got together for a splash party at the Catholic Club on January thirteenth and at a pajama party during the same month. At the annual club banquet held in the spring at a local restaurant, many girls received club emblems and letter awards based on the number of activity points that they had accumulated.

Y-Teens share in city-wide fellowship.

Sophomore and Senior Y-Teens show girls how to lead Christian lives in this world and build spiritual fellowships with their neighbors. Both juniors and seniors belong to Senior Y-Teens. The clubs' members served dinners at the Toledo Society for the Blind and worked to present the World Fellowship Carnival for children at the Y.W.C.A. Among the clubs' activities this year were a splash party, an ice skating party, and an area bermuda hop. Members also attended an area formal dance. Senior Y-Teens members went Christmas caroling, and the sophomore club held a car wash. In the spring, a banquet was held at which next year's senior officers were installed.

Tri-class organization strikes balance

Any boy at Whitmer may join the Hi-Y. It is a city-wide Y.M.C.A. organization dedicated to promoting clean living, good sportsmanship, and service to fellowmen. Members sold programs at all the home basketball games and Christmas trees at the West Toledo Y.M.C.A., maintained the school's trophy cases, and helped to present the Thanksgiving, Christmas, and Easter assemblies. The senior club had a hay ride, a swimming party, and a picnic. Junior Hi-Y sponsored an aftergame dance, two splash parties, and a picnic. The sophomore club held a dance and a car wash. Another Hi-Y activity was the sponsorship of over night stays, at which club members were allowed to use Y.M.C.A. facilities. Athletic programs included intramural competition among all three clubs and competition in the Y.M.C.A. basketball and volleyball tournaments.

Homecoming highlights fall festivities.

Homecoming has been a tradition at Whitmer since 1947, when it was first held at Mr. Ralph Pritts' suggestion. The Queen and her court first reigned at a Homecoming dance in 1954, and both the game and dance have been recognized as irreplaceable parts of the football season.

This year's game was played against our arch rivals the Rogers' Rams. Preceding the game, the queen candidates and the 1961 Queen, Carole Refi, were driven around the field. Moments later, the crowd cheered as it was announced that Lorna Farnol was the 1962 Homecoming Queen. She and her court reigned at the dance the following evening. Whitmer's cafeteria was decorated for the Royalty Ball with crepe paper streamers and a huge papier-mache football suspended from the ceiling.

The dance pace livens as students twist.

Lorna and her escort, Chuck Smith, lead the court in their royal dance.

seniors produce thought-provoking drama.

The senior class under the direction of Mr. Janan Aufderheide and assistant director Kathy Smith, presented Lawrence and Lee's Inherit the Wind. Inspired by the Monkey Trial of the twenties, this play portrayed the trial of a school teacher in a small town who was prosecuted for teaching the theory of evolution. Two of the country's most famous men, agnostic Henry Drummond and three-time presidential candidate, Matthew Harrison Brady, clashed in the court proceedings. The whole nation watched the courtroom when, in an unprecedented move, the defense counsel put the prosecuting attorney on the witness stand. Drummond not only broke through Brady's basic fundamentalist religious shell, but he also broke his spirit and body. Brady died and life continued. But still the question remains: Darwin or the Bible? think or conform?

Cast members mingle backstage, trying to find their places for the curtain call.

The evening passed quickly for all as they danced among the palm trees to the music of John Hammil's Band.

Lovely Queen Darlene poses on her flowered throne.

Tropical breezes warm a mid-winter prom.

The typically icy weather in mid-winter was dispelled on January 19 when the class of 1964 presented its Junior Prom, "Polynesian Paradise." The atmosphere in the South Sea setting was created by a huge overflowing volcano, from which King Kong emerged unexpectedly, a flowered bridge, and a bamboo hut where the refreshments were served. A grassy, elevated island in the center of the floor served as a throne for the queen and her court. Midway through the evening, the queen candidates were presented, and last year's queen, Miss Judy Work, crowned Miss Darlene DeNune 1963 Junior Prom Queen.

"No More Homework" delights audience.

Phyllis Worona doesn't wait for acting-principal Sandy Simms to settle an argument over the bucket. She takes matters into her own hands as she tries to regain possession from Pat Noon.

The junior play, No More Homework, by John Henderson, was directed by Mr. Leonard Kreinbrink, and student assistant Jeanne Provenzano. When the principal and his assistant were called away, Student Council officers acted as school administrators. They surprised the student body and faculty by ending all homework assignments.

A record number of students perfect

The twenty-seventh annual Whitmer Circus was presented under the direction of Mr. Donald Stacy, who first initiated the event in 1930. A record number of 700 students appeared in the circus, performing the various skills and specialties which they had practiced in gym classes for four months.

The oldest acts: tumbling, apparatus, clowns, and the ladder act, were welcomed with the same enthusiasm that has greeted them for years. Some of this last year's acts, not included in the 26th Circus were a girls' two-man routine and a military drill. As always, the relays stirred up excitement in the audience as the seniors won six out of eight races. New speed records in the relays and giant swings were made. The ladder act, not new by any means, added the final expected thrill and climax to the whole evening.

"Sidewalk superintendents" gather to watch the final rehearsal of the ladder act, and to offer comments and advice.

Sophomores Sue Stagg and Jack Rankin combine two determined looks and three legs to win the race for their class.

many skills to uphold circus tradition.

A speciality act features Linda Littrell and Dick Wright in a high-arm, which is just a small part of their more advanced co-ed routine.

"Everybody's up!" is the cry that could be heard as elementary co-ed participants performed in unison.

Kathy Drake, a French headmistress, tells her students, Marietta McKain, Roseann Babiuch, Bette Bodley, and Sue DeMarco, how she found and lost her love in Paris on Armistice Day.

The giddy girls and their handsome beaux prove that love conquers all as they hear wedding bells chiming for them.

During the 1962 school year, Whitmer presented its first musical stage play, "The Boyfriend," written by Sandy Williams and directed by Mr. Paul Slovak. It was performed during the first week of May, although the cast had been rehearsing with Mr. Slovak and student-director, Ruth Grochowski, since the latter part of January.

"The Boyfriend" was a successful British satire of the musical comedies of the 1920's. It was set in an exclusive girls' finishing school on the French Riviera and heightened by authentic scenery and colorful costumes of the period. The classic story of the love and mistaken identities of two millionaires, masquerading as proletariats was enacted, complete with foot-tapping songs, tender ballads, and dance numbers.

Under the skeptical gaze of British Lord, Gordon Cooper, Kathy Drake shows her old flame, Terry Miners, the latest style in swim suits.

The carnival entertainment at the Cafe Pataplon features a Spanish dancer, Lolita, played by Donna Goodman.

"I could be happy with you" is a phrase often repeated and wholeheartedly believed by both Martha Kirchenbauer and Jim Ruddy.

For a unique money-raising project, the sophomore class sold mugs in the collegiate style with the school seal and the different class years on them. Students joined their classmates during their free time to work on the mugs. Here Kathy Gribbon, Glenda Burnesen, Terry Harms and Pat Garvin add the finishing touches to several samples. The class plans to use this same project for the next two years.

SENIORS

Dave Moon — Sergeant-at-Arms, Nick Neuhausel — Vice President, Mr. Graves — Adviser, Linda Pelton — Secretary, Dave Saelzler — Treasurer, Fritz Kalmbach — President.

Forgetting their traditional aloofness, several upperclassmen let their hair down in a spirited snowball fight. These uninhibited seniors are: Gary Crabb — chairman of queen committee, Chuck Smith — co-chairman of memorial committee, Larry Strang — memorial committee, Tane Deeds — chairman of program committee, Andy Skaff — prom committee, and Bette Bodley — co-chairman of memorial committee.

Motto

"He who walks in wisdom is safe from danger."

Colors

Green and White

Cherry Blossom

All girls with money on their minds, Pat Chriss — chairman of money-raising committee, Kathy Smith — chairman of announcements, and Annabelle Clark — chairman of publicity committee, walk into Mr. Schaller's office for a conference.

Gene Kawczynski explains to co-chairman of the prom committee, Lorna Farnol, and chairman of the tickets committee, Sandy Sheppard, that some dates and places are unavailable for the senior prom.

Seniors see school scenes slipping by.

The class of '63 is credited with an interesting first. We are the first class to complete the full three years of study in the new Whitmer. Our class assembly was held in September when Mr. Graves and Mrs. Lafayette were introduced as our advisers. Officers were soon elected and busied themselves with plans for our successful bake sales. In our sophomore year, a new dance was held during Christmas vacation. The girls asked the boys to the dance and spread the turn-about fun throughout the preceding Twirp Week. By spring, we were so eager for a class function that even fresh rain and mud didn't keep us from having a picnic and enjoying ourselves.

Mr. Graves and our adviser, Mrs. Poth, welcomed us back in our junior year. Student council revived the practice of underclass attendants, and Jill Penske represented us at Homecoming. Another innovation of Council was Slave Day in which students were sold to teachers at an auction. In December we helped with the debate tournament by acting as timekeepers, guides, and hosts for visiting participants. Later in the year, we sold tickets for a spaghetti dinner to raise money for our district champs. The profits from the dinner sent four challengers to the National Tournament in Missoula, Montana. On December 19th, the most important date in our junior calendar, we received our class rings. February was an important month because we produced the spine-tingling play "Terror in the Suburbs." During this same month, Judy Work reigned as the lovely queen of the Junior Prom, An Evening in Venice, which was held in our decorated field house. Late in the spring we held a successful car wash.

Our lone adviser, Mr. Graves, helped us begin our final year's activities with the play, "Inherit the Wind." It was a departure from the ordinary high school play and represented renewed efforts in the field of educational theater. Students again prepared for our debate tournament, but a sudden snowstorm across Ohio forced Whitmer's closing and the tournament's postponement. A surprise contribution of Christmas tree ornaments provided us with another money-raising project, and proceeds from a car wash increased the size of our treasury. In the spring, the Ohio Association of Student Councils held its tenth annual convention at Whitmer. Delegates from all over Ohio attended and spent the night at many of our homes. When the convention fun was over, we returned to the job of preparing for our senior prom in May and our all-important commencement exercises. Although the graduating class has decreased in size from the 425 who attended Whitmer as sophomores, the remaining students have increased their knowledge, widened their experience, and developed their character during their three years at Whitmer.

Walt Mieczkowski and Bob Hume explain to Madeleine Jacques about the entrance requirements of American colleges. Sandy Kruse, with whom this exchange student is staying, looks on, ready to offer her own comments. Madeleine is a native of Mexico City, but has also lived and studied in England and France. Her school's "summer" vacation is from November to February and this year she is spending it here in the United States.

Glass Center of the World

Owens-Illinois Building
Madison & St. Clair

More than 1,300 Toledo-area residents work in the O-I General Offices. Total Company employment exceeds 36,000.

In these four buildings are employed more than 4,000 Owens-Illinois men and women of Greater Toledo. Their employment means payrolls and purchasing power which adds strength to the area's economy.

Through nation-wide Company growth and progress, Owens-Illinois payrolls here have long provided a part of the economic drive which has marked Toledo's advancement. These four buildings are a visible sign of that contribution—past, present and future.

Owens-Illinois Technical Center
1700 North Westwood

One of the world's largest and most complete glass, plastics and forest products research facilities, housing more than 800 scientists, engineers, technicians and staff personnel.

Libbey Glass Division Plant
Ash & Champlain

Home of fine Libbey table glassware, this manufacturing plant employs nearly 1,500 and is one of 60 Owens-Illinois plants and mills located throughout the nation.

Duraglas Center

LIBBEY-OWENS-FORD

a Great Name in Glass
TOLEDO 2, OHIO

Have you noticed schools like this on your travels? Probably, because new buildings are springing up everywhere. They are beautiful and functional structures with large glass areas to create an "open-world" atmosphere to eliminate the feeling of being boxed in.

Wherever you live, work, shop or travel, you'll find L-O-F Glass making it more enjoyable. In homes, motels, schools and stores. In offices and factories. In hospitals and churches. In cars, buses, trains and planes.

There's an L-O-F Glass that insulates windows. It's called Thermopane® insulating glass. Another subdues sun heat and glare. L-O-F Glass that makes automobiles safer. L-O-F Glass to do a thousand things.

And when anyone needs glass, there's an authority on it nearby—your local independent L-O-F Glass Distributor or Dealer. His name is in the telephone book Yellow Pages under "Glass". Call him.

Nobody should ever consider his education complete. You can't go wrong by getting as much schooling as possible. So strongly does Toledo Edison feel about this that we finance three scholarships a year at the University of Toledo.

Lots of college graduates find Toledo Edison a good place to work. Investor-owned electric companies offer interesting careers in many fields. You might want to look into this.

Are You In Step With The Times?

You will be when you step through the door of GOODREMONT'S OFFICE SPECIALTIES. You will not only be in step, but far out in front of your competition, when it comes to business and duplicating machines.

The progressive minded business man only has to be introduced to one of our fine lines of equipment to know he need not search any further . . . no matter what his needs may be.

With this confident feeling and sincere belief in the value of our products, we would like to invite you, tomorrows businessmen and businesswomen, to come in and see a demonstration. Witness for yourself, that stepping through the front door at GOODREMONT'S is certainly keeping in step with the times.

► ADLER "JUNIOR 3"

In our day and age, saving of time and self expression count for a great deal in the life of everyone. The use of a typewriter in private life shows the writer's positive attitude to present day requirements. On an ADLER even the dot on the "i" and the cross on the "t" illustrates the exquisite style of type which will make your letters a pleasure to read. The top class model like the JUNIOR 3 is not only a sensible and efficient instrument for work but is a pleasure to behold.

► ADLER "ELECTRIC"

In the ADLER Electric look for all these Adler features: (1) variable key depression (2) automatic, adjustable paper injector and ejector (3) word expander (4) automatic dotting and underscoring including double underscore - repeat space bar - touch-action tabulator bar - impression control - automatic off-switch - silent, non-vibrating motor - noiseless, automatic carriage return and line spacing

► ADDO-X PRINTING CALCULATOR

Model 4541 - Printing calculator for all four operations, with accumulating register, credit balance, multi-memory, and special discount and mark-up keys. Due to its ingenious design, the machine gives speedier, more accurate, and easier calculations. The symmetric keyboard on an Addo-X affords easier vision. The feather-light touch and the rapid change-over of the operating keys allow faster work with less fatigue. The machine calculates automatically, with super-short-cut multiplication --- which means that it automatically chooses the shortest way to the result.

► RONEO "750"

Roneo have produced, in the new '750', a precision machine which could not be simpler to use. Automatically it produces the highest possible standard of work at a surprisingly low running cost. Comparative tests alongside the leading duplicators from the United Kingdom, the United States and the continent of Europe show that no other duplicator in the world can give you the advantage of Roneo '750'. Form your own conclusions by asking for a comparative demonstration in your own office alongside any machines you choose.

Memento brings memories back to life.

The staff would like to take this opportunity to thank the many people whose co-operation and assistance made the 1963 Oracle possible. Our thanks are offered to the faculty, administration, yearbook advertisers, H. A. Powell Studios, and the American Yearbook Company.

Between the covers of the 1963 Oracle, a place is provided where, in years to come, vague memories can again become young and clear. Although the important events of today will pass into the impersonal history of the school, this memento will always be at hand to bring back recollections and pleasant memories.

To a nice kid,
from a nicer one.
